

To be considered for NextEnergy services, your company must meet the following criteria:

- You should have a proof of concept of the technology idea and own IP
- You should own or have license to unique IP position
- You should have access to technical expertise
- You should have a general idea of how to get concept into the marketplace
- It is preferred but not required that your company has made some level of financial investment in the development of the technology